This class is a two-week intensive study of international security, regional issues, and global concerns. The core component of this class will focus on understanding the politics, relations, and values that influence the diverse culture of Georgia, as well as understanding the economic, political, and social issues affecting the region. Students will take part in numerous tours, which serve to broaden the students’ understanding of the very diverse Georgian culture and society. Tbilisi State University and its Institute for Conflict Analysis and Management will be our hosts for the course.
